

Dr. Bergman is a General Pediatrician on the Faculty of the Department of Pediatrics, Stanford University School of Medicine. His current interests include the re-design of preventive and developmental services for children and the use of new technologies to create caring non-face to face encounters. He is presently working with the Kaiser Permanente Health Plan and Medical Group to transform well child care services. Dr. Bergman has served as Chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Quality Improvement where he played an integral role in the development of evidence-based guidelines. He is also the past chairman of the Board of the National Initiative for Child Health Quality and currently serves on the Executive Committee of the Children and Adolescent Health Measurement Initiative