

Karissa Lockett graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with her Bachelor degree in Nursing, and attended Louisiana State University where she received a Master degree in Social Work. She is a certified Asthma Educator.

Karissa holds a special interest in pediatric disease management and quality measures related to chronic health issues. She has been a member of the Joint Commission Disease-Specific Care Advisory board for the past three years, and serves as the President of the Asthma Coalition of Texas. Karissa currently works at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, and is the Director of Disease Management and Wellness Department. Under her leadership, The Disease Management Department was awarded Joint Commission Disease-Specific Care Certification for its three programs, The Asthma Management Program, LEAN Families Program, and Diabetes Program, in the spring of 2007, and will pursuing three additional certifications in the spring of 2009..