

Sharon Fleischfresser, MD, MPH, FAAP, is a pediatrician and Medical Director of the Wisconsin Program for Children and Youth with Special Health Care Needs (CYSHCN) in the Wisconsin Department of Health and Family Services. Dr. Fleischfresser received her medical degree from Baylor College of Medicine and masters in public health from the University of Texas-Houston. Her previous experience includes working as the medical director of an inner city community health center that serves predominately Latino and Southeast Asian families and as Maternal Child Health Director of a large urban health department. Sharon collaborates on a number of grant initiatives including the MCHB funded Early Hearing Detection and Intervention (EHDI). She co-chairs the Wisconsin Chapter-American Academy of Pediatrics (WIAAP) CYSHCN Committee and is a past recipient of the WIAAP Pediatrician of the Year Award for her work related to newborn hearing and children and youth with special health care needs.